

10 Killer Ways to Feel like a Million Bucks

There are plenty of studies tying health to wealth (and vice versa), on a national and a personal level. Here are some tried-and-true suggestions for feeling better.

1. Stretch and strengthen your hamstrings

In a society where many of us sit for hours at a time, the hamstrings don't get either the exercise or the stretching that they need to hold it all together. Do you suffer from lower back pain? Mid-to upper back pain? Knee problems? Hip aches? Ankle soreness? All of these can be tied to weak and/or tight hamstrings. Once you begin troubleshooting, you should feel both the stretching and the strengthening immediately in your lower back, though it may take two to three weeks to see results other places.

2. Drink water

I know you've heard this a million times. I've heard it a million times. But it's true. We all know that drinking water helps flush toxins from the body and keeps the kidneys healthy, but did you know that staying hydrated will help eyes stay moist, sinuses drain, stomachs digest better, skin stay soft, nails and hair grow healthily, brain cells function better, and blood cells fight off infection?

3. Spend some time every day in silence

Some people like to meditate, but some continue with their daily tasks, just without the noise. Most of us are so accustomed to the sounds around us—the air-conditioning, the typing of the employees around us, people talking in meetings—that we don't realize
