

own yard work, and not hiring out, we save big money, and working up a sweat is great for your love life! (We also get to wear adorable matching leather work gloves.)

.....

4. Create a spark

.....

When the weather gets chilly, avoid the temptation to turn up the thermostat. Grab a blanket and cuddle for optimal warmth. During the evenings you can keep your house 10 degrees cooler and still remain comfortable with proper layering and some snuggling!

.....

5. Conserve water

.....

Cut your number of showers and baths down by half, to save big money on water and electricity or gas. Since most people's showers last as long as there is hot water to run, make it a date and give your hot water heater a break on that second run!

There are so many ways that sharing resources can connect two people. Keeping this in perspective when cutting back will make it feel like an experience worth remembering, and not any real sacrifice, at all! — Linsey Knerl