

GREEN LIVING

If spending money wisely is a representation of how you care for your resources, then expanding that concern for the world around us should seem natural. Everyone says they are “going green,” but how can that apply to you and your finances? Since many of the “greenest” tips also help you save cash, it’s easier than ever to feel motivated about making positive changes for the future.