

It is great for workouts since the body loses salt through sweat.

2. Ginger

If you like spices, ginger is a great way to add a “zing” to your water. If it is added to boiling water it is also a great way to clear your throat and sinuses during a cold.

3. Citrus

My Filipino husband’s family members often freeze a small tropical citrus fruit called kalamansi in ice cube trays and then put the ice cubes in water for flavor. The same can be done with other citrus fruits, and the water produced would be infused with vitamin C.

4. Herbs

Mint, lemongrass, and parsley are great for adding aroma and a hint of green to your water. If you want to release the flavor you can crush the plants a little bit before putting them into your water.

5. Cucumber

I saw this at a spa I went to in Hawaii. A water dispenser was half filled up with cucumber slices, and the water dispensed tasted very refreshing and smelled a bit like cucumber.

6. Wine

One of my favorite additions to water is plum wine or umeshu. Umeshu is a Japanese liqueur made from the ume fruit (also known as “Japanese apricot” or “Chinese plum”). Because umeshu is very sweet, I drink it with a lot of water. The distinct sweet flavor still comes through when there is 1 part umeshu in 10 parts water. You can do the same with other syrupy liqueurs.

7. Berries

Blueberries and strawberries have distinct flavors that could be soaked up by water. All you have to do is cut or crush a few of the berries into your water.
