MONEY MANAGEMENT TOOLS

Buxfer

(buxfer.com)—Buxfer makes it easy to track IOUs and shared expenses among friends. It is a fantastic tool for splitting expenses like rent, poker debts, and group dinners. You can even use it to track your own expenses like a traditional money management tool.

Mint

(mint.com)—The easiest way to keep track of your finances. Take five minutes to set up an account by adding your bank, credit card, and investment account information. After that, Mint—made by Intuit—will start tracking your spending and generate useful budget reports. It'll even send you notices when your bills are due. Mint can make any lazy man feel like a financial genius.

PearBudget

(pearbudget.com)—The 1% of money management software you actually need. The genius of PearBudget is that it focuses on solving one specific problem and it does it better than any other tool out there; it helps you create a simple budget and stick to it.

SmartyPig

(smartypig.com)—You set a goal, choose the amount you want to contribute each month to reach that goal, and SmartyPig automatically pulls that amount from your linked bank account each month. Like a savings account at your local bank, SmartyPig pays an interest on deposits and all deposits are FDIC insured. You can withdraw your money at any time. SmartyPig provides the instant willpower many of us need to reach our financial goals.

TurboTax

(turbotax.intuit.com)—It's fast, cheap, and easy to file your taxes online. Made by Intuit (of Quicken fame), TurboTax is one of the most trusted names in tax preparation.

RATE COMPARISON AND SEARCH TOOLS

Bankrate

(bankrate.com)—The best comparison site for financial products like mortgage rates, home equity loans, CDs, car loans, credit cards, and money market accounts. Bankrate provides several helpful financial calculators including a refinancing calculator, mortgage payment calculator, auto loan monthly payments, CD earnings, FICO score estimator, 401(k) savings calculator, and more. Check out Bankrate before signing up for a new financial account to make sure you're getting the best deal available.

Credit Karma

(creditkarma.com)—Track your credit score for free and save money by getting customized offers (credit cards, loans, auto insurance, etc.) based on your score. This is one of my favorite financial services.

FiLife

(filife.com)—You select the options that are important to you, set ranges for your personal habits, and get a recommended list of financial products that caters to your specific needs. Per-
