

Ramit Sethi, Darren Rowse, Sharon "The Frugal Duchess" Rosenberg, David Loeper, and Mary Webber. If you ever need an excuse to buy a new book instead of using the library, these authors are worth every penny.

Our online community owes much of its modest success to the early exposure we received from top bloggers like Donna Freedman and Karen Datko of MSN Money Central; J. D. Roth from Get Rich Slowly; Kimberly Palmer of U.S. News & World Report; Jeremy Vohwinkle of About.com; Ben Popken, Meghann Marco, Chris Walters, Carey Greenberg-Berger, Alex Jarvis, and their team of savvy curmudgeons at the Consumerist; Gina Trapani, Wendy Boswell, Adam Pash, Kevin Purdy, Jason Fitzpatrick, Asian Angel, Infmom, and their team of busy beavers at Lifehacker; Glen Stansberry, Brett Kelly, and the LifeRemix Network; John Nardini and the Money Blog Network; and John Wesley and the Positive Blog Network.

Attending Rita Arens's inspiring "Blog to Book" session at the BlogHer08 conference gave us the confidence to pursue a book deal. Thank you Rita, Elisa Camahort Page, Jenny Lauck, Elana Centor, and all the great ladies of BlogHer, for giving us the confidence to transform our dreams into reality.

We are deeply grateful for the wonderful support from the ElevenMoms family. Every email, chat, and meetup we share reminds us of your enormous talent and unlimited generosity. Special thanks go to John Andrews of Wal-Mart for bringing us together, and to Melinda Osborn, Melanie Hartman, and Jessica Simmons from Rockfish Interactive for showing us so many unique ways to spread our frugal living message.

We tip our hats to Muhammad Saleem for sharing his awesome marketing tips. Along the same lines, we also thank Nicole Glor and Megan Esteves from Regan Communications for showering us with brilliant ideas. Much appreciation goes to legal beagles Cyndi Wong, Howard Zaharoff, Schuyler Moore, and Lee Roudnicki for saving us from our stupid ideas. And we can't forget to salute Heather Tang, because we promised we would

This book wouldn't exist without the tireless editing efforts of Linsey Knerl and Myscha Theriault. Thank you for giving up so many nights and weekends to make this book a success.