

to apologize, buy them a new drink, and start a charming conversation. Just a nudge, though; if you drench them they'll be ticked off and you'll be considered a prize moron.

18. Soak your feet

If you've had a hard day at work, a cold beer isn't just good for your spirits. Those tired, aching feet can be revived by a beer foot bath. Please, don't be tempted to drink the contents afterward.

19. Turn ordinary rice into something very special

Next time you cook up a pot of long-grain rice, perhaps jasmine or basmati, cook the rice up in beer. Something with a lot of flavor will work well, like a brown ale or stout. The rice will absorb the beer and have a lovely flavor. Better still, it will look brown in hue, making people think you're eating healthy!

20. Wash your pillowcases

This may be an old wives' tale, but apparently the nutty smell of hops helps you fall asleep. If you're an insomniac, try washing a pillowcase in beer and you may just get to the land of Nod sooner than you think.

21. Give yourself movie-star looks

Simply buy many bottles of beer for the person you want to date and ensure they drink it all. By the time they've finished, they'll think you have the looks of a million-dollar Hollywood star. (Warning: Beer-goggle effect will wear off quickly.) —

Paul Michael

10 Simple Meals in 10 Minutes or Less

It's all well and good to save money on meal prep, but for those working outside the home or juggling various other projects, saving time can be