

of your time and money, and leaves loads of opportunities for extra projects, meetings, or getting it done on the golf course, so to speak.

— Myscha Theriault

10 Beauty Products You Can Make at Home

Tired of hearing health and beauty product recipes you need a chemistry textbook to decipher? Here are 10 simple ideas that anyone can try at home. No 28-step, 15-ingredient face masks here. Simple. Quick. Workable.

For the most part, these ideas are pretty unisex. So guys, feel free to indulge too. The only thing you'll need in addition to the ingredients is a few different types of empty containers such as spray bottles, squeezable squirt bottles, and empty jars with screw-on caps.

1. Spray conditioning treatment

All you need is a fine mist spray bottle. Put a small squirt of your favorite hair conditioner in the bottom. Fill the rest with water. Close the bottle. Shake like crazy. Spray on wet hair and comb through. It's also a great detangler for kids. That is literally all there is to it.

All spray bottles are not created equal. I bumped up to a larger one so I would not have to remix as often. Check to make sure it's a spray coming out, not a stream.

Also, play around with the amount of conditioner that works for you. What works great for one person may leave another person's hair oily. This is easily solved with either extra water or extra product.

2. Homemade scented hand sanitizer or aftershave gel

Equal parts of rubbing alcohol and aloe vera gel with a few drops of your favorite scented oil. Seriously, that's it. My husband also likes to add sandalwood oil to this mixture and uses it as an aftershave gel.

We like the pump-action containers left over from liquid hand soap. You might like the smaller squirt bottles; whatever works for you. I put one by every sink in the house, and next to the keyboard. We've gotten in the habit of having a small bottle in each vehicle as well.