

Because it's easy to lose track of payments, visits, and procedures, I have found that it's best to keep good records of how much I was charged, how much my insurance covered, and how much I owe, to make sure nothing slips through the cracks. This is really helpful when you have a large deductible, so you know exactly how much it takes to meet it and you're never overcharged.

If you'd like a copy of the Medical Procedure Tracking Sheet I use, you can download it at

CreativeSavingsBlog.com/ExpenseResources

It's great for that at a glance look at how much you paid in medical bills throughout the year, and is helpful come tax time just in case you qualify for a medical deduction!