

your face. Every now and then they have clearance on makeup and that is a WIN.

—Allison, VA

3. GO DOUBLE-DUTY

You don't have to stuff your makeup bag with separate bottles of moisturizer, primer, foundation, and sunscreen anymore. Instead, you can grab a cream that rules them all by doing double, sometimes triple duty!

Here are the most popular options:

- Tinted Moisturizer – A tiny bit of color mixed with a moisturizing cream
- BB Cream – Light foundation coverage with moisturizer and sunscreen
- CC Cream – A lighter foundation that helps even skin tone
- DD Cream – Claims to do everything the previous creams do, though it was created with extremely dry skin in mind

These creams are best used by those who don't need (or prefer) a ton of coverage, so you will want to experiment with a couple samples before immediately jumping in.

Also, foundation-like products are not the only ones with more than one job to do. There are eye creams with primer included, nourishing lipsticks that don't require lip balm underneath, and blush sticks that work for both the cheeks and lips. Once you start down the makeup aisle, you might be pleasantly surprised that you don't need as many products as you originally thought!

4. MAKE IT YOURSELF