

DAY 21: AFFORD ALL THINGS HAIR CARE

Even though I'm a frugal girl through and through, I rarely "cheap out" when it comes to my hair. It's not that I haven't tried to go to a hairdresser who charges less; it's just that I've never had good experiences with chain salons. The cut is always uneven, the color a tiny bit off, and then I end up spending even more money trying to get it fixed at a professional salon. Not to mention all the pints of ice cream I eat to soothe my emotions during the process!

Dollar shampoos and conditioners provide even worse results. It doesn't matter if the bottle promises soft and luscious locks, I always end up looking like a frizzy monster after using them. Nope, I'll gladly pay a pretty penny for a professional stylist and products that actually work with my hair. I don't even care if you think I'm vain.

You see, for me, hair care is a very important part of my overall well-being. I'm a much happier and more confident person when my hair actually does what I tell it to, and I bet many of you feel the same way. We as women want to feel and look pretty, but that doesn't mean we're opposed to saving money either. Especially if we can achieve similar results.

I'm happy to say you can have financial peace without sacrificing quality. These fantastic tips will help you save even more at the salon, and make those everyday hair products you already love and use at home a no-brainer to buy:

1. REDUCE SALON FRILLS

I mentioned before how important it is to find a good stylist, especially if you are super picky with your hair. However, there are still ways to save on the services you do need, and that's by reducing the services you actually get.

Here are a few tips and tricks:
