

value. Sometimes it's just a couple dollars off, but other times they can be quite significant!

- Lastly, buying gift cards around the holidays will give you plenty of bonus gift cards and cash to use later in the year. Most restaurants offer a $25 gift card with a $5 bonus on top of it, and new moms always appreciate not having to think about meals.

6. PURCHASE GIFTS THROUGHOUT THE YEAR

One of the best ways to save on gifts is to purchase them on sale throughout the year. Kitchen outlet stores and Black Friday sales always have appliances and kitchen gadgets for a lot less, and I don't know a bride who can't use another dish towel or spatula.

Clear out a space in your closet dedicated to these kinds of items, and then when you find a sale, pick one up and stash it away. Even simple things like candles and throws are generic and can always be used. The best part is, you'll never be caught off guard by another event again, and everything you purchase will be because you found it on a deeply discounted sale or clearance rack.

Another bonus is the next time someone buys you a Christmas gift and you weren't planning on giving them one, you can go to this closet and pick out something to save face!
