

or on your phone during a workout is one way to get in more reading time.

- Book a Meeting Room. Most larger libraries have one or two meeting rooms available for book clubs, presentations, conferences, and local events. It would be the perfect place to host your next “business meeting” or “mom to mom” get together.
- Use the Free Wireless. In this internet age, it almost seems impossible not to be connected. If you need a change of scenery, or want to avoid a home internet bill, use the library!
- Read Free eBooks. Browse your library’s database of eBooks and check one out right on your computer. All you need to do is download it to one of your devices and enjoy during the loan period.

Not every weekend has to be filled with an expensive outing to the zoo, stadium, or shopping mall when you have a library nearby. It’s thrifty, educational, fun, and best of all, FREE.

6. EXPLORE DISCOUNTED WEBSITES

Whether you want to find a new book to read, watch a movie, catch up on a TV series, or listen to the latest tunes, there are websites where you can do it for much less. And yes, they are all completely legal!

- For Books – Sign up for alerts from sites like BookBub.com and BookGorilla.com for epic discounts or even free books. You can also legally download books at Gutenberg.org as a result of expired copyrights. And of course, check the free section of Amazon.com for the latest titles.
- For Movies – Netflix is the cheapest and best subscription service with a wide range of flicks for every taste; you’ll just need a streaming device to play it. (See Chapter 13 for details). Amazon Prime is more expensive, but also comes with a lot more perks.
