

Since we can't always do every activity that comes along (whether it's because of time or budget restraints), the best alternative is to determine what is a priority for your family—movies, travel, theme parks, etc.—then put your Entertainment budget towards those specific activities.

You might not be able to do as many of them, and as often, but when you save up enough to afford a special treat every now and then, I guarantee everyone in the family will appreciate it that much more!