

Many of these options require negotiation on your part, but even if your landlord says no, it doesn't hurt to put yourself out there and ask. Just remember to be kind, confident, and respectful during every conversation—you never know when they might give you a break!