

If you have a hard time staying home, these no-spend ideas are sure to keep you busy:

- Read a book
- Clean the house
- Clean the car
- Organize an area of your home
- Declutter and sell your items on Craigslist
- Make a yummy recipe or a DIY project you saved on Pinterest
- Learn a new skill
- Call a family member or friend you haven't talked to in a while
- Try a new hairstyle
- Make a card (or two or three)
- Go on a walk
- Ride your bike
- Start a blog
- Write in your journal
- Catch up on a TV series

If all else fails, you know that nagging to-do list you never have time to complete? Now's the perfect opportunity to cross some of those items off!

For those who work outside the home, it's worth asking your boss if there's any way you can telecommute a few days a week. This won't work for every profession, but you never know until you ask. Otherwise, see if you can catch a ride with a friend who lives nearby, or coordinate with a family member who heads out to work at the same time you do.

2. BATCH ERRANDS

When you do leave the house, be sure to run errands all at one time, and batch stores together based on location. This eliminates unnecessary travel, and doesn't just save gas money, but it also saves time.