

You can try your best to save money on gas in every which way possible, but if you have a gas guzzler, it may be time to consider something more fuel efficient. It might not be a purchase you can afford right now, but keep it in mind for later (or as a separate savings fund), and do car-related research in the meantime. I love digging into Consumer Reports to find which vehicle gets the most miles per gallon.