

Consider these facts. The average college student graduates with $20,000 of debt. Nearly 10 percent of students owe creditors more than $7,000. The average credit card debt for adults 18–24 rose 104 percent between 1992 and 2001. The financial world has become increasingly complex and dangerous over the last decade, and young adults are the most vulnerable targets. Learning to manage your money wisely is now more important than ever.

Get on the Path to Financial Security!

Please Send Money provides students and young people with the tools they need to navigate the tumultuous world of personal finance. This book is filled with dozens of real-life stories, chronicling eye-opening financial mistakes that are commonly made. Dara Duguay offers advice on how to avoid these problems, covering such topics as:

- Easy credit and the proliferation of credit cards
- How to manage car payments
- The dangers of using student loans for personal needs and wants
- Dealing with bankruptcy
- Overcoming material temptations

Please Send Money also contains various financial tools, from a psychology-of-money test to worksheets for determining budgets, net worth, cost of credit and safe debt levels. Please Send Money is a book that no young adult should be without.

DARA DUGUAY, the Director of Citi's Office of Financial Education, has been involved with the issue of financial literacy for over 20 years. She is the former Executive Director of the non-profit Jump$tart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy in Washington, D.C.
