

Monday. They gave me the press packet anyway. It was eight or nine pages of numbers, including the M-1, M-2, and M-3 money-supply figures and the latest total on the federal debt, which stood at $1,586.3 trillion, with the nonfederal debt at $5.1 trillion. To me, this information was no more useful than Sanskrit, so whether I'd gotten it a week late or a year early was inconsequential.
