

Whether it makes sense to get out of a specific mutual fund and into one that simply buys market averages is something you'll have to decide for yourself. What I got out of my trip to Bankers Trust was an appreciation for the portfolio manager's difficult job. That Mr. Platt worried about equaling the averages made me feel better about my own record—which so far was nothing to brag about.