

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

My profound thanks to those who have made contributions to the substance and realization of this book:

Irving B. Harris, chairman of the Acorn Investment Trust, my mentor for nearly forty years;

The partners of Wanger Asset Management, a team of brilliant professionals: Chuck McQuaid, Terry Hogan, Marcel Houtzager, Rob Mohn, and Leah Zell;

Kathy Tucker, my assistant, for her long hours on this project; Mac Nelson and Jason Zweig, for their invaluable editing of the manuscript;

Everett Mattlin, my coauthor, who provided the discipline to get this book done;

Fred Hills, my editor at Simon & Schuster, for his patience, guidance, and professional skills in making this book accessible to a general readership;

My mother, Mary Jane Slepyan, and my five marvelous children, Eric, Leonard, Debra, Jenny, and Elise.

And finally, I want to thank Harry Bagal, manager of the Lane Bryant mail-order facility in Indianapolis, for firing me in 1960, thus freeing me to obtain a job as a security analyst in Chicago.
