The year 2003 may be further strengthened as a target year for a major low by an analogy to the 1921-1932 experience. Wave V of (III) from 1921 to 1929 lasted 8 years, and wave V of (V) from 1974 to (presumably) 1995 will have lasted 21 years, or 2.618 times as long. The 1929-1932 bear market lasted .382 times as long as the preceding wave V, or 3 years. (See Appendix A for a discussion of these ratios.) The bear market beginning in 1995 might also last
