

In the End

The probation period is given as a tool to avoid legal hassles while dealing with wrong hires. However it can be used as a motivation tool as well. The employees who meet the productivity levels defined by the organization can be given a higher designation or a salary increment to recognize their contributions and efforts.

The other extreme is to remove the probation period, especially for the jobs where performance standards are not clearly defined. The employees can be deemed confirmed from the very first day of the job. This saves “energy” and “time” for everyone.

That brings us to the next topic, the “Time” itself. We will discuss time in the next chapter.

Onboarding should be designed for experience.

Hands-on HR

Here are some hands-on questions for you to apply what you learnt in this chapter.

1. Prepare the letters

Prepare the following letters:

- a. Confirmation Letter
- b. Confirmation Extension Letter

You may use Survey sparrow for generating letter (<https://surveysparrow.com/hr-tool-kit/probation-extension-letter-template/>)

2. Prepare an onboarding checklist

Prepare an onboarding checklist. Add at least 5 more items in the onboarding checklist apart from the items mentioned below

- a. Employee Master Data Completion (Important data required for salary processing)
- b. Bank Account Opening
- c. Seat Allocation
- d. IT Asset Allocation
- e. Email and System Access
- f. Issue Identity Card

3. Prepare an Induction program

Prepare an induction program for an organization of your choice. You may use Slideteam for preparing the presentation. (<https://www.slideteam.net/hr-induction-powerpoint-presentation-slides.html>)