6. Settlement Support

The employee should be provided the settlement support in the new role. It involves

- HOTO for the new role.
- Training for taking up the new role.
- Reimbursing the relocation expenses, if relocation is required. It is a good practice to provide relocation leave to allow employees to set up a base in the new city.

Another close relative of transfer is deputation.

4. Communication

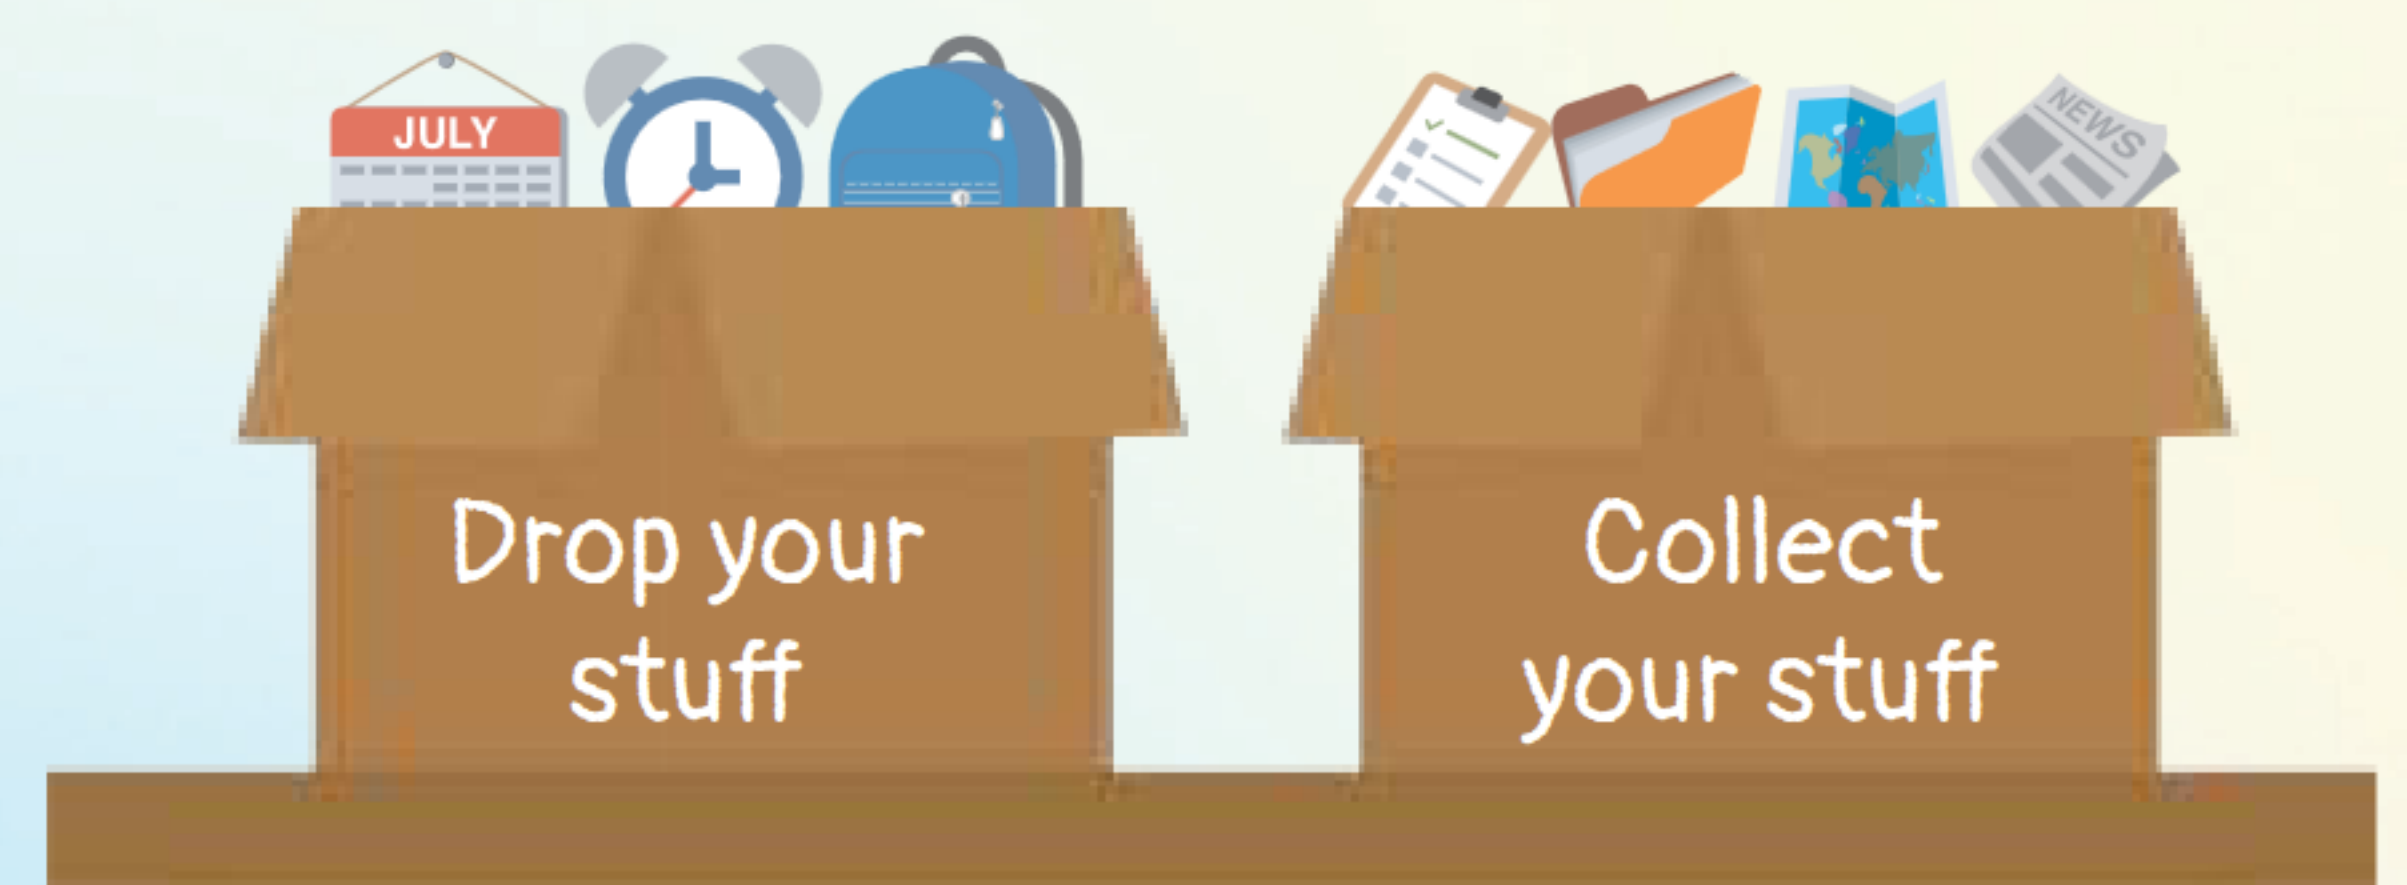

The transfer date should be finalized and communicated to all stakeholders including the employee. A formal transfer letter is issued to the employee.

5. HOTO

The HOTO means Handover and Takeover. It involves following steps:

- Handover - The employee should prepare a Handover (HO) document and explain the tasks of the existing position to the next employee.
- Take Over - The next employee should Take Over (TO) the position and provide a sign-off for the release of the employee.
- Access and Assets - The access privileges and assets granted to the employee for performing their current job should be revoked. The same privileges and assets should be passed on to the next employee who occupies the position.
