Compliances

The compliances are the act of conforming to the rules, regulations and laws that govern a business. Compliances cover a host of areas, including financial reporting, safety, and privacy. Here are the key compliances that you must know as an HR expert. We have previously discussed some of the compliance issues. We will keep them short and delve into the details of other topics that we have not yet discussed.

A. Employment and Labour Laws

There are four important acts. These are factories act, shops and establishment act, ID Act and Contract Labour Act. We will go through them in detail.

Factories Act, 1948

All factories with 10 or more workers need to ensure compliance with the key requirements of the Factories Act. Non compliance may result in legal action, including fines and imprisonment. The compliance requirements are as follows:

- ✓ Registration Certificate - Obtain certificate from Chief Inspector of Factories.
- ✓ Safety Measures - Provide safety equipment to prevent accidents & injuries.
- ✓ Health & Wellness - Provide ventilation, water, restrooms, canteens, & first aid.
- ✓ Working Hours - Adhere to working hours, breaks and overtime norms.
- ✓ Annual Return - File return on the number of workers, accidents and diseases.

The establishments other than factories come under the scope of the Shops and establishment act.
