d. Dispute Resolution -

The ID Act provides resolution of dispute through conciliation, arbitration, and adjudication.

i. Conciliation

Conciliation is a process in which a neutral third party facilitates the two parties to reach an agreement without making decisions on their behalf.

ii. Arbitration

Arbitration involves a neutral third party or panel that listens to both parties, evaluates evidence and arrives at a judgment which is binding on both the parties. It is time consuming and costly.

iii. Adjudication

Adjudication is a legal process. It is similar to arbitration. The key difference is that the neutral third party is a judge, and decisions are made based on legal rights and obligations.
