

Can you run your business without people? Suppose, you try to run the business without people.

You may do it by outsourcing work to partners. You may even try to automate work using technology.

If you want to be successful in your business, then you must have those positions filled at all times. If those positions are vacant, it has a direct impact on the continuity of your organization. It is a key strategic risk.