

2. Analysis and Investigation

The process for analysis and investigation should be clearly defined. It includes:

a. Reading -
Read (hear) all the grievances.

b. Analyzing -
Analyze whether a grievance has merit or not.

c. Investigation -
Gather information and evidence. If other employees are involved, try to, understand their perspective. Assess whether a formal hearing is required for the grievance.

d. Hearing -
Conduct a formal hearing, if there is merit in the case. All stakeholders should be present at the hearing. Ask the complainant to present the case along with the evidence. Let there be cross questioning. Explore options to resolve the issue.
