

Reducing Grievances (CGST methodology)

You can systematically reduce grievances by following CGST methodology. It looks taxing but it makes life much simpler.

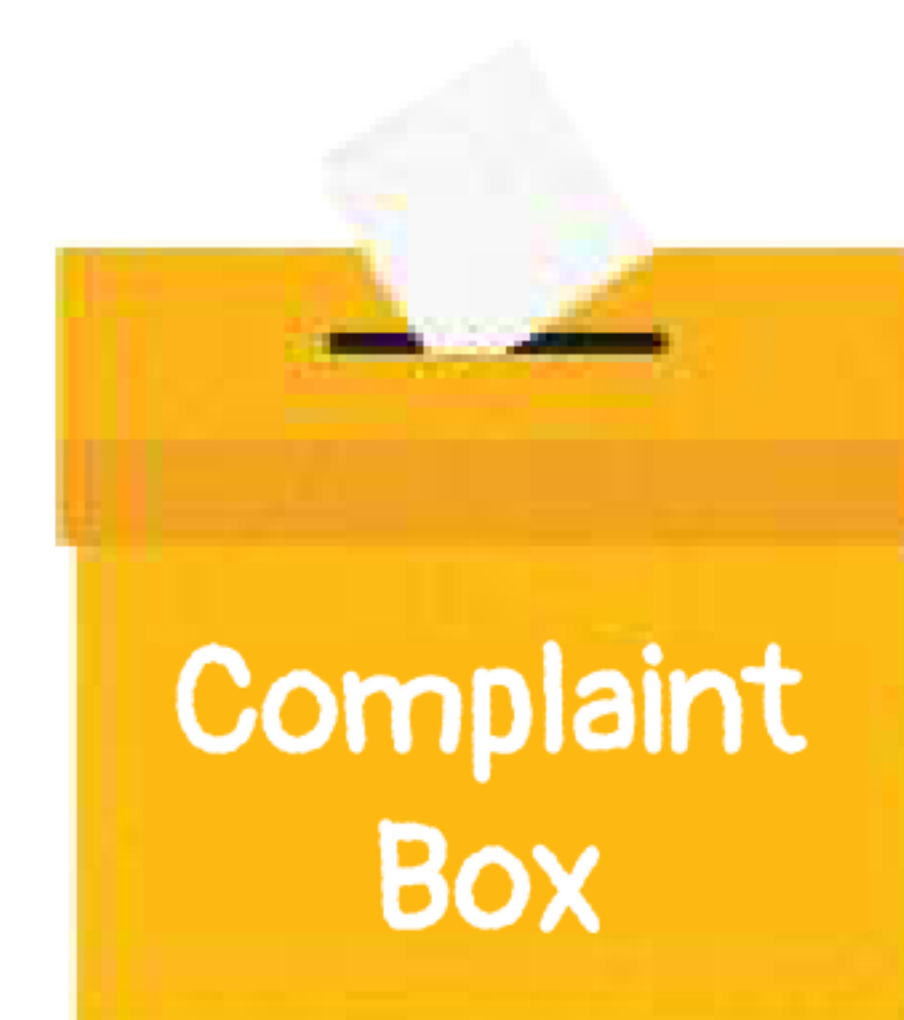

1. Communication of changes

Embed communication within the change management process.

2. Gathering feedback

Create formal and informal channels for collecting feedback and taking action on it, rather than simply waiting for grievances. You may implement any or all of the methods of gathering feedback.

a. Suggestion box -

It is a box you put in public places where employees can make anonymous complaints.