Suppose you are working on improving your fitness and you want to lose weight. The first thing your trainer will tell you is to start measuring your weight everyday. If you start measuring it, only then will you know whether your efforts are translating into your end goal. Metrics measure your performance.

Tracking metrics gives you a clear view of areas for improvement and helps you make data driven decisions.

HR Metrics

The HR metrics are quantitative measures used to evaluate various aspects of Human Resources Management in an organization. The metrics help evaluate the effectiveness and efficiency of the various HR practices in the organization. As an HR expert you must understand the difference between opinions, data points and metrics.
