

In the End

HR Metrics are the smartest way to make your HR practices effective and efficient. Sometimes, we become so passionate about metrics that we unnecessarily complicate them. You should keep the metrics simple so that you can act on them. You should exclude metrics which do not provide actionable insights. There is no point in having metrics just for the sake of having them.

Also, all metrics are not suitable for everyone. Some metrics are used by the HR strategy team. Some are used by the recruitment team. Some are used by Managers. There are some metrics that overlap among various stakeholders. You should have a common interface for measuring metrics so that everyone refers to a single source of truth.

You need an HR databoard for that. We will discuss Dashboards in the next chapter.

Keep metrics simple and actionable.

Hands-on HR

Here are some hands-on questions for you to apply what you have learnt in this chapter.

1. Find the HR metrics

Find 10 key HR metrics reported in the Annual report of Unilever. Identify values for following HR metrics from the Annual report.

- Number of Employees
- Gender Diversity Ratio
- Voluntary Turnover
- Accidents per million hours worked
- Employee Engagement Score

You may use following link for the annual report (<https://assets.unilever.com/files/92ui5egz/production/e665693f2bd2efbbde5658baf84043df7937cfd7.pdf/annual-report-and-accounts-2020.pdf>)

2. Identify metrics for improving quality of Hire

Identify metrics for improving the quality of hires in an organization of your choice. Ensure that there is at least one outcome measure and two input measures.
