

How will you make sure that the hiring gets completed in a timely manner? Assume the notice period is 15 days for frontline employees.

480 minutes

That means offers should be released in 15 days. If one interview takes 15 minutes. Then you can do 32 interviews in a day (480 minutes). You will need one week to complete the interviews. If one week out of two weeks goes into interviews, that means you have one week to source candidates.

You may monitor the entire recruitment pipeline on your dashboard. If there is a delay in sourcing or interviews, then you may decide to create two panels for interviews to finish the process faster. This way you can monitor and manage the performance of your processes.

3. Identifying frauds

Suppose, you get a whisper that your domestic travel cost is going up. You start monitoring the domestic travel expenses. You analyze and find that expense is going up because the air ticket and hotel prices have increased. You also see that the number of travellers has also gone up. What can you possibly do?

Monitor the average number of trips made by each employee. There are chances, you will get a surprise. You will find that some of the people are not supposed to travel that much. If you further go into details, you might find fraudulent bills for claiming the travel expenses.
