

Organization goals work well when multiple teams, such as sales, service and product, need to collaborate and deliver a solution to the customer. Organization goals break down the silos within the organization. They motivate people to collaborate and align towards organizational objectives rather than maximizing team objectives.

