

By highlighting this during the hiring process, a company can attract talented people who are not just looking for a job but an opportunity to grow with the company.

C. Invested Employees

If employees are given ESOPs, they become part owners, so this sense of ownership motivates them to go beyond their comfort zone and put in efforts that directly impact the company's success, which in turn increases the value of their stock holdings. They are motivated to excel in their work knowing that their performance is directly linked to their incentives. This encourages employees to stay invested, leading to better outcomes for the company and themselves.

D. Vision Alignment

It helps the employees align their interests with the company's goals and vision. This motivates them to come up with innovative ideas, work together better, and stay committed to reaching the company's goals. It leads to the company succeeding, and so does the value of the employee's stock holdings.
