

By highlighting specially priced value meals, customers are influenced to choose a featured meal over other items.

When you visit Burger King, you'll notice they often feature their specially priced value meals prominently on menu boards and promotional displays. These meals are strategically positioned at eye level or highlighted with different colours or graphics compared to regular menu items.

- ➡ Customers are naturally drawn to the prominently displayed value meal due to its central position and attention-grabbing design.
- ➡ The strategic use of the Centre Stage strategy in Burger King's marketing influences customers to consider and often choose the featured value meal over other menu items.
