

Brand Response (Customer Perception & Emotions)

Brand response is how consumers respond, which includes their judgments and feelings.

Consumer judgments involve evaluating a brand's quality, credibility, and relevance to their needs. For instance, a smartphone brand may be judged based on its specifications, customer reviews, and reputation for reliability.

Consumer feelings refer to the emotional responses a brand evokes, such as warmth, excitement, security, or trust. These emotions play a crucial role in shaping how consumers perceive and connect with the brand.

Both consumer judgments and feelings are important aspects of the brand response, as they influence consumers' overall insights and attitudes towards the brand

Brand Resonance (Loyalty & Advocacy)

Brand resonance represents the brand-customer relationship.

At this stage, customers don't just buy from the brand; they form a deep emotional connection with it.

This bond leads to behavioural loyalty, where customers consistently choose the brand over others, make repeat purchases and actively recommend brands to others.

