

C. Distributors

Distribution facilitates the movement of products between different parties, focusing on logistics and storage. Distributors primarily focus on the logistical aspects of distribution rather than product ownership. They manage transportation, storage, and handling as products move through the supply chain.

They ensure that the products are stored safely and delivered to their destinations. Logistical services help reduce costs and improve overall efficiency for manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers.

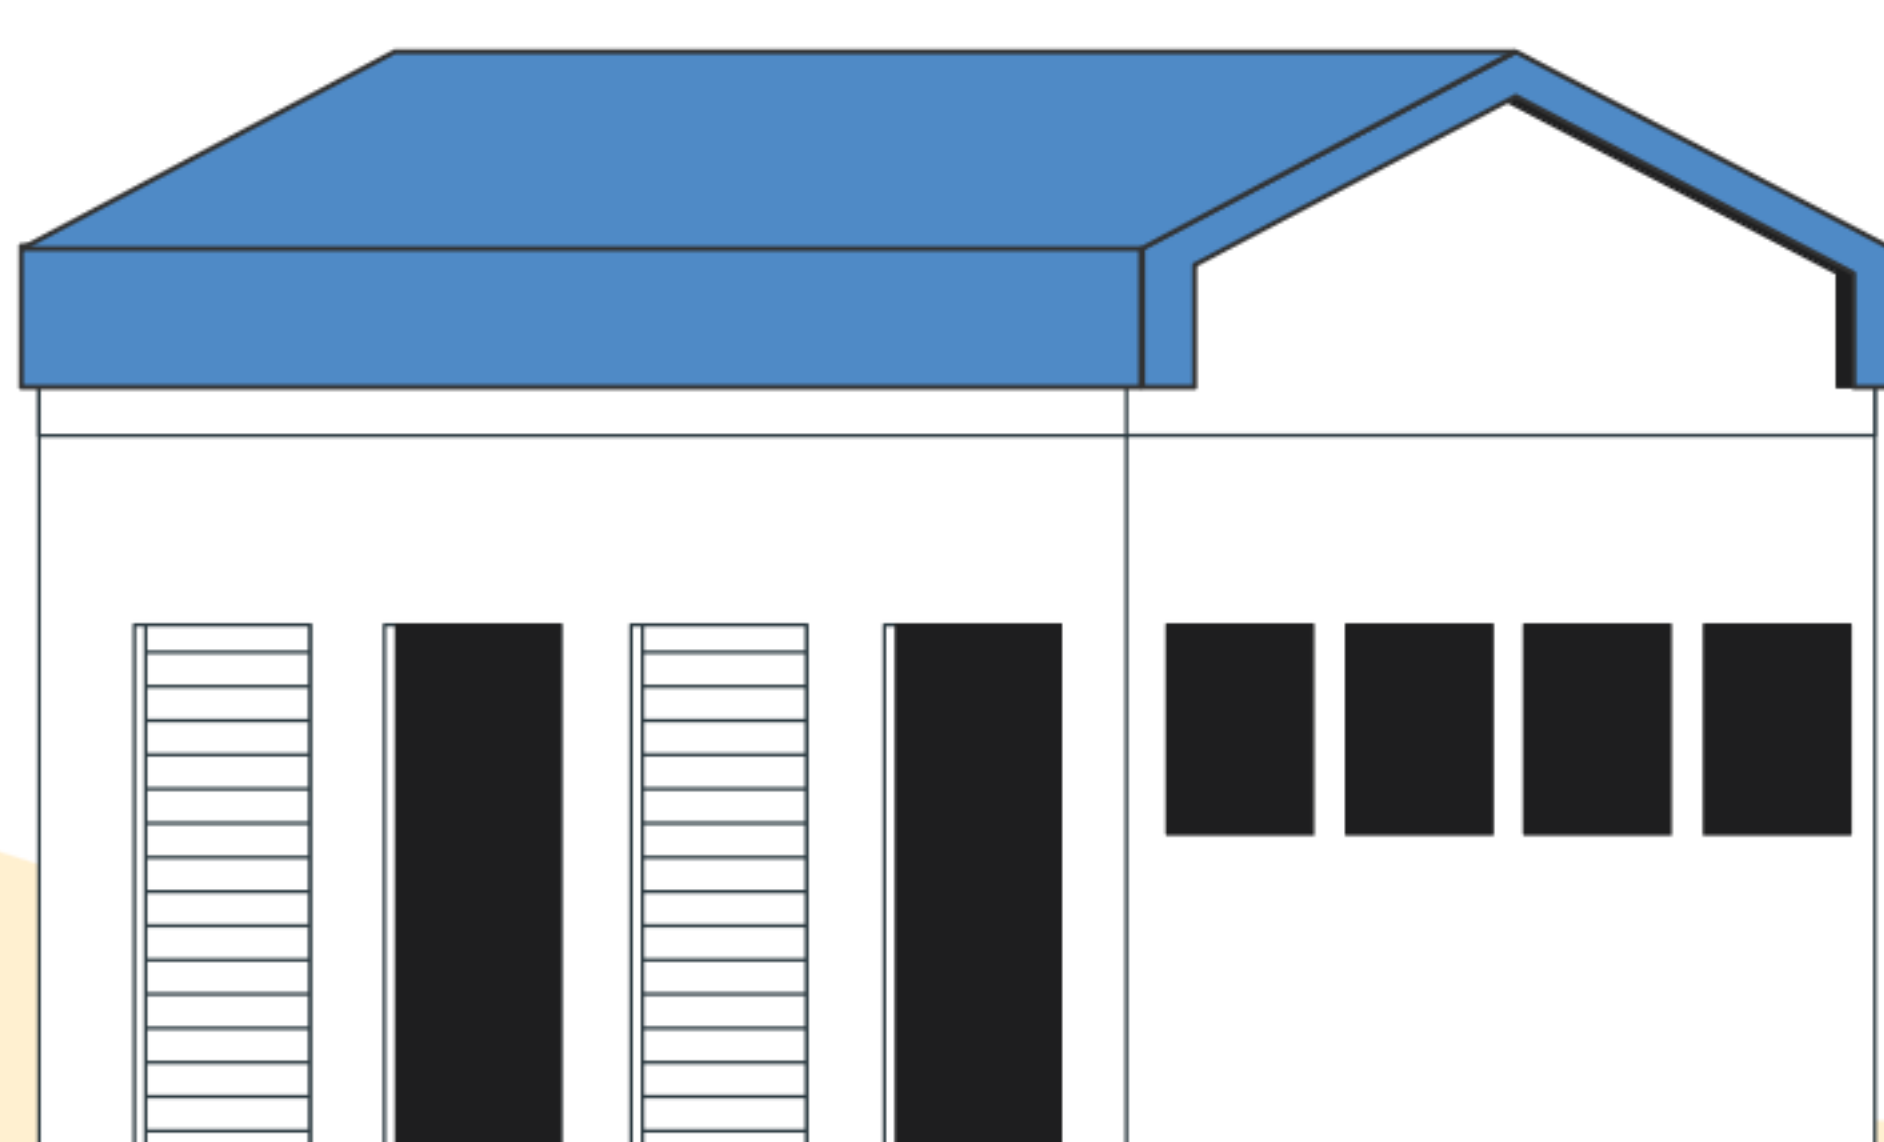

Manufactures products

Distributor Collects Products

Stores and Handles Product

Supplies Products To Retail Shop

Retail Shops

