

E. Reverse

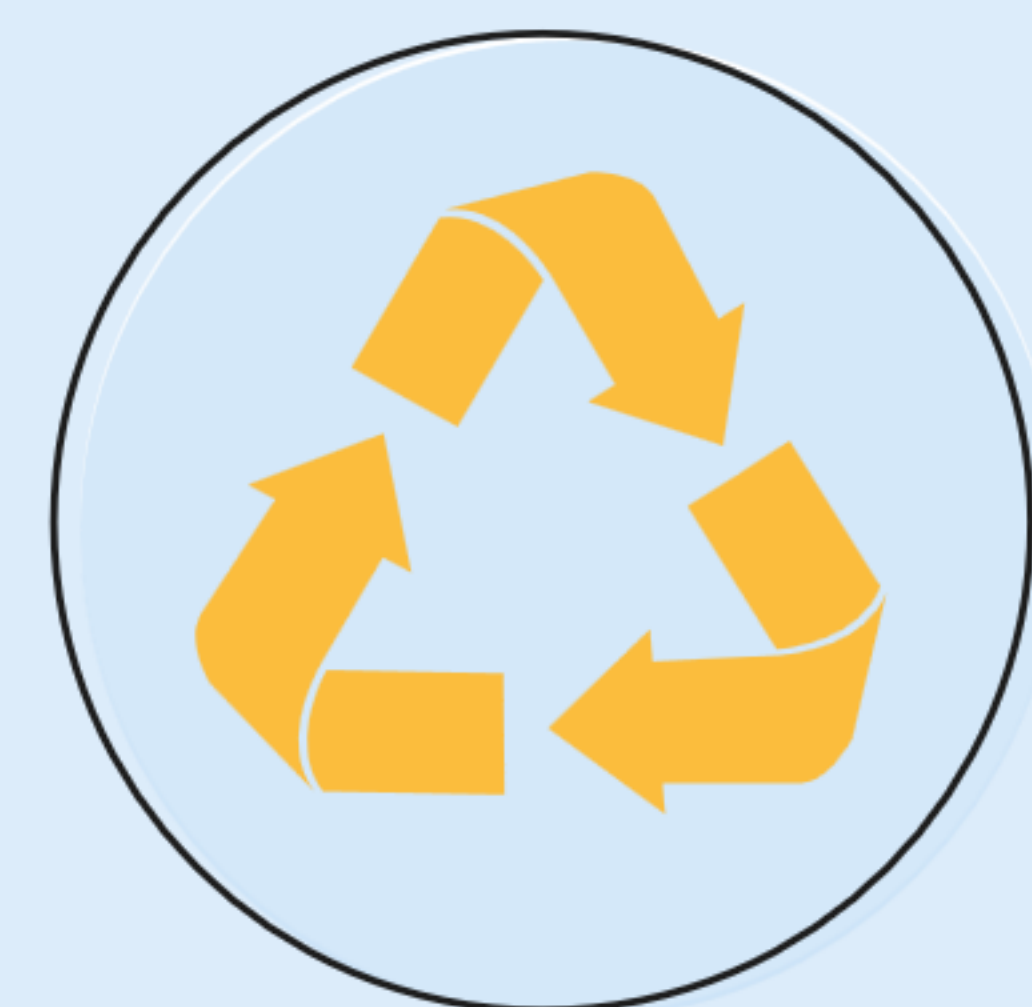

Reverse distribution is where products move from customers back to the manufacturer. This process is used for recycling and refurbishing, especially electronics like used computers or smartphones. It ensures that the products are carefully handled after their initial use to minimize environmental harm and contribute to sustainability efforts.

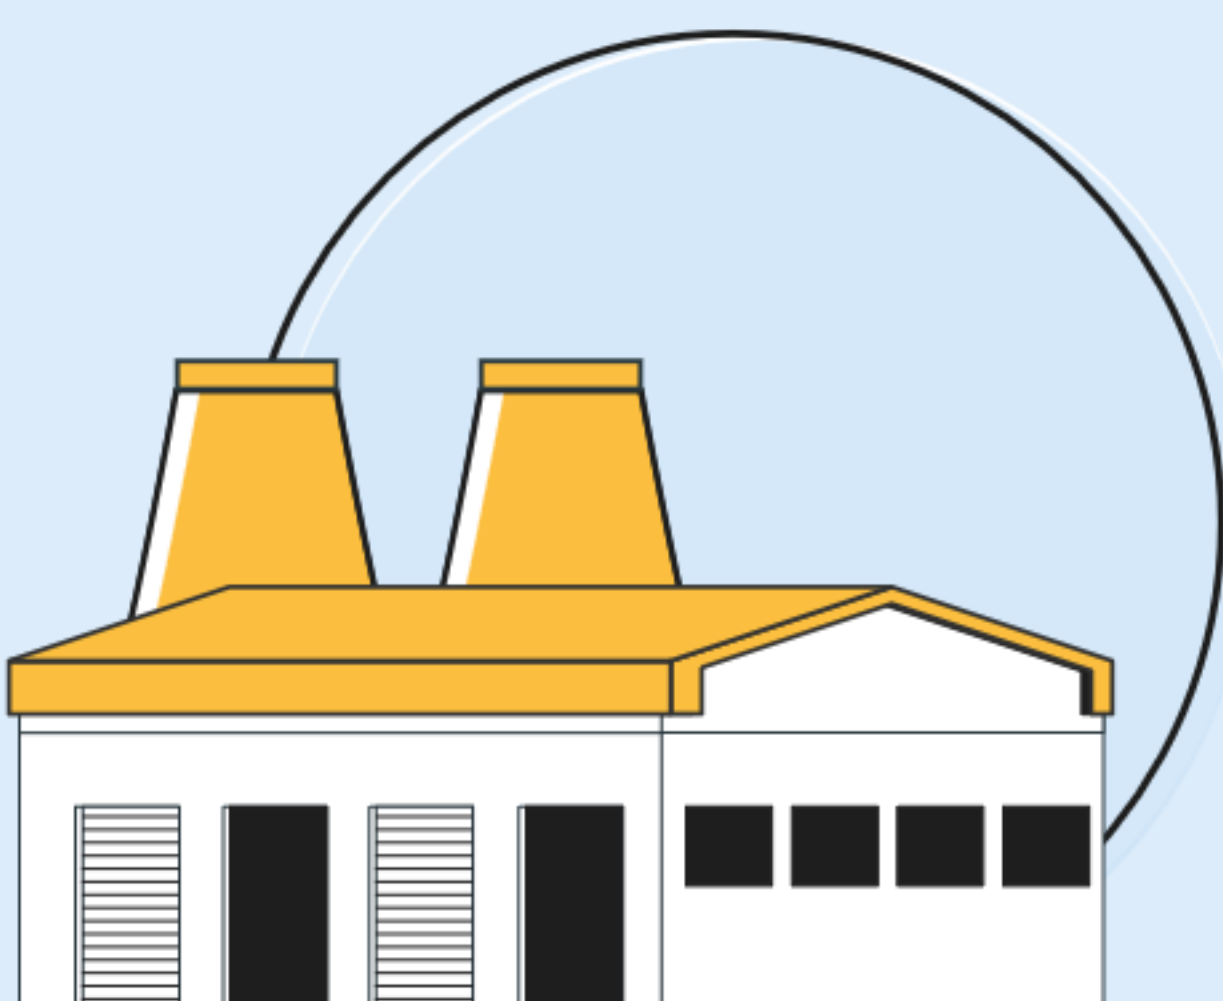

Receive & Inspect

Repair

Recycle

Manufacturer

Additional considerations may arise based on your unique proposition, such as the inclusion of a customer service centre or the integration of automated technology.

