

C. Flagship Stores

A flagship store, like a brand-owned experience center, serves as a hub for direct customer interaction, reinforcing brand identity and delivering a unique shopping experience.

Theobroma's flagship stores serve as a brand immersion space, reinforcing its premium identity, creating a direct customer relationship, and driving customer loyalty and advocacy—key elements of a successful D2C strategy.

D. Subscription Model

The subscription model involves delivering products or services to customers regularly in exchange for a subscription fee. Newspapers and Milkman are examples.

The best example in this model would be - Country Delight. It has redefined the dairy subscription model in India, providing customers with a convenient and reliable way to receive farm-fresh milk and dairy products at their doorstep.

With a flexible subscription service, customers can customize delivery schedules and quantities according to their preferences. This direct-to-consumer approach not only ensures consistent access to high-quality dairy products but also establishes a direct relationship with customers, fostering loyalty through personalized service and convenience.
