

Business-to-Business (B2B) Model

In the Business to Business (B2B) model for services, businesses provide specialised services directly to other businesses, catering to specific operational needs and enhancing efficiency within industries.

A. Consulting/Advisory for Businesses

Consulting or advisory services for businesses provide specialised expertise to help businesses improve their operations or solve problems.

One example of this is finance advisory, where consultants offer financial advice to businesses in areas such as budgeting, financial planning, investment strategy, risk management, and financial analysis. Similarly, there are marketing, HR, and technology consultants providing their expertise.

B. Technological Services/Products for Enterprises

Technological services or products for businesses provide customised solutions according to the specific needs, for example, ChatGPT offers specialised AI services to different industries meeting their requirements.

