

7.5 SWOT Analysis

SWOT analysis is a tool used to evaluate the strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats facing a business or organisation. It provides a structured framework for evaluating both internal factors (strengths and weaknesses) and external factors (opportunities and threats) that impact the organisation’s performance and competitive position in the market.

These help businesses gain insights into their current situation, better understand their competitors, and make informed decisions. It helps determine what the organisation does well, where it can improve, what opportunities exist for growth, and what threats may pose challenges to its success.
