

B

Outsourcing Non-Core Functions

Outsourcing non-core functions involves delegating tasks to third parties or freelancers instead of building an in-house team. This approach helps businesses reduce costs, improve efficiency, and access specialized expertise. Commonly outsourced functions include accounting, HR, software development, and marketing. By leveraging outsourcing, businesses can obtain high-quality services on demand while focusing on their core operations and strategic growth.

