

Research and Brainstorm Possible Solutions

Researching and brainstorming involve exploring various solutions to address the identified problem. In the case of a manufacturing company, for example, they could research alternative suppliers for higher-quality materials. They could also research new technologies or testing methods to assess the quality of raw materials.

