

3. Building MVP

As discussed earlier, building an MVP is a critical step, but it can sometimes be confusing. It is a basic version, or we can call it a sneak preview of your product, and you give it to test users to see if it actually solves the problem you are addressing and helps you make the right decisions.

After launch, monitor product performance and revert back to the LEAN STARTUP MODEL.