

2. What's the Need for Having a Co-Founder?

1. Innovation

At times, we become overly attached to our ideas, making it difficult to assess them objectively or recognize potential flaws. A co-founder brings fresh perspectives and helps brainstorm better solutions. Their input can challenge existing viewpoints, leading to stronger innovative ideas.

Having a co-founder can be highly beneficial, as they encourage critical thinking and provide creative solutions that drive both innovation and success.

