

c. All about a Car Loan

If you are looking to finance your car by taking a loan these are the things you should keep in mind.

1. Interest Rate

Interest rates determine how much extra you'll pay on the amount you borrow. Where you get your loan can affect your ability to negotiate. Banks often have fixed rates that are tough to change. However, if you're getting your loan through a dealer, it's worth a shot to ask for a better rate. They might say it's a fixed bank rate, but some friendly negotiating could work wonders.

Also, consider checking with the bank directly. Public banks typically offer lower rates than private ones, although they might take a bit longer to process your loan.
