

Let's look at a thumb rule.

3-30-30-20.

3

3 Times Your Annual Income:

This is your maximum budget ballpark.

30

30% for EMI: Never let your EMI exceed 30% of your monthly income.

30

30% Down Payment:

A solid down payment is key to managing your loan comfortably.

20

20 Years Loan:

The ideal tenure for a home loan.

Now, I understand that this financial rule is conservative and because of rising property prices this might not be realistic to sit within these limits, so according to your personal requirements you can stretch your budget. The maximum that you can stretch upto is how much loan the banks will give you. However, here, you shouldn't stretch your finances too much; otherwise, you'll have most of your money stuck in an illiquid investment and find it too burdensome to pay it off.
