

actual number of dollars paid out progressively exceed what could have been obtained from high-yield shares. Why shouldn't this logical and natural trend continue in the future?