

Learn the Language

B1G1F or BOGO: Buy one item, get one free

Blinkie: A coupon pulled from the small red coupon dispenser attached to the grocery store shelf.

CAT, Catalina: A manufacturer coupon that prints out of a machine at the register, triggered by what you buy. Also known as “register rewards.”

Cpn, c/o, c: Coupon, cents-off coupon

Complete Deal: A refund form with all the proofs (including cash register tapes) needed in order to send the form in for a refund. This was the term used in trading ads from the 80s and 90s.

CRT: Cash register tape

DCRT: Dated cash register tape

ECB: Extra Care Bucks, a register reward available at CVS

FAR: Free after rebate

NED: No expiration date (Popular for coupons from the past, rare today.)

OOP: Out of pocket, the expense of a deal after coupons are applied

MIR: Mail-in rebate

Peelies: Coupons that are attached to the product

POP: Proof of purchase, usually the UPC (Universal Product Code), but whatever is required to get a refund. Also called a “qualifier.”

Q: Qualifier, same as proof of purchase above. Can also mean “coupon” on some chat boards, but to long-time couponers, it was always a qualifier or