

Coupon Queens and Coupon Kings

JILL

Jill Cataldo may be a relative newcomer to the world of extreme couponers. She has only been couponing “seriously” since 2005. Before that, she had been one of the average coupon users who would occasionally clip coupons, using only a few a week. It was when she was pregnant with her third child that she began utilizing the Internet to track store sales. It wasn’t long before she figured out that the stores ran sales in cycles and that it was wise to follow those cycles and combine the sale prices with coupons to stockpile. When she discovered that manufacturer’s coupons could be combined with a store’s coupons, she learned to save even more. Between her stockpiling and couponing, she figures she saves at least 70 percent a week on her family’s grocery bill. Moreover, she believes anyone can do what she does, and she holds workshops teaching consumers how to do exactly that.

In June of 2008, the Chicago Sun Times asked readers for tips on how to save money on groceries. Jill sent in an e-mail explaining her method of saving money, and the newspaper did a feature article on her.
